Bon Meade Fourth-Graders Prepare for Science PSSA

To gear up for the April 30 science portion of the Pennsylvania System of School Assessment exams, fourth-grade teachers at Bon Meade Elementary took inspiration from a famous game show.

More than 100 Bon Meade fourth-graders participated in “PSSA Jeopardy” in anticipation of the state-mandated exam administered to students in grades four, eight and 11. Students split into four teams and donned coordinating colors as the Red Tigers, No Class Clown, Tie-Dye and Pow Wow Pink.

A total of four students answered question at the same time with a buzzer response system as other students chose the category and dollar amount posted on an interactive whiteboard.

Sadly, Alex Trebeck couldn’t make it to the test preparation, but Mr. Barry Barthelmy filled in as entertainment dressed as a clown.
